

Geert Booij

The Morphology of Dutch

Second, revised, and expanded edition

Oxford University Press

2019

CONTENTS

List of Tables

Abbreviations and Symbols

Preface

1. PRELIMINARIES
 - 1.1. Introduction
 - 1.2. The form of morphological generalizations
 - 1.3. Paradigmatic word formation
 - 1.4. Productivity
 - 1.5. Lexicon and lexicalization
 - 1.6. Sources of information
 - 1.7. Overview of the book

2. THE INFLECTIONAL SYSTEM
 - 2.1. Introduction
 - 2.2. The inflection of nouns
 - 2.2.1. Number

2.2.2. Possessor marking

2.2.3. Gender

2.3. Adjectival inflection

2.3.1. Degree forms

2.3.2. The inflection of prenominal adjectives

2.3.3. The suffix -e as nominalizing suffix

2.3.4. The Partitive Construction

2.4. Verbal inflection

2.4.1. Finite forms

2.4.2. Periphrastic tense and aspect

2.4.3. Infinitives

2.4.4. Past participles

2.4.5. Present participles

2.5. Distribution, interpretation, and usage of inflectional forms

2.6. The boundary and interaction between inflection and word formation

3. DERIVATION

3.1. Introduction

3.2. Theoretical preliminaries

3.2.1. The syntactic category of derived words

3.2.2. Input and output categories

3.2.3. Input restrictions

3.2.4. Stratal restrictions

3.2.5. Unproductive derivational morphology

3.2.6. Competition between derivational processes

3.2.7. Derivation and semantics

3.3. Prefixation

3.3.1. Verbal prefixes

3.2.2. Nominal prefixes

3.4. Suffixation

3.4.1. Verbal suffixes

3.4.2. Nominal suffixes

3.4.3. Adjectival suffixes

3.4.2. Adverbial suffixes

3.5. Conversion

3.6. Word manufacturing and prosodic morphology

4. COMPOUNDING

4.1. Introduction

4.2. Nominal compounds

4.2.1. The left constituent of nominal compounds

4.2.2. The semantic interpretation of nominal compounds

4.3. Adjectival compounds

4.3.1. The semantic interpretation of adjectival compounds

4.3.2. Synthetic adjectival compounds

4.4. Verbal compounds

4.4.1. Immobile verbs

4.5. Numerals

4.5.1. Cardinal numerals

4.5.2. Ordinal numerals

4.5.3. Fraction numerals

4.6. Neoclassical compounds and bound morphemes

4.7. Reduplicative compounds

5. THE INTERFACE OF MORPHOLOGY AND PHONOLOGY

5.1. Introduction

5.2. Morphological and prosodic domains

5.2.1. The phonological make up of affixes

5.2.2. Prosodic gapping

5.3. Allomorphy

5.3.1. Affix allomorphy

5.3.2. Stem allomorphy

5.3.3. Allomorphy and paradigmatic relations

5.4. Phonological constraints on word formation

5.4.1. Phonological constraints on stacking up affixes

6. THE INTERACTION BETWEEN MORPHOLOGY AND SYNTAX

6.1. Introduction

6.2. Syntactic valency effects

6.2.1. Deverbal nouns and inheritance

6.3. Construction-dependent morphology

6.3.1. The op het A-e af construction

6.3.2. The aan de [V]_N construction

6.3.3. The [voor de N]_{PP}-construction

6.4. Complementarity and competition between morphology and syntax

6.4.1. Nominal compounds and A+N phrases

6.4.2. N+A compounds and adjectival phrases

7. SEPARABLE COMPLEX VERBS

7.1. Introduction

7.2. SCVs as phrasal constructions

7.3. SCVs with adjectives and nouns

7.3.1. Quasi-incorporation

7.4. Nominalization of SCVs

7.4.1. Second order schemas

7.4.2. Particle verbs with unproductive nominalizations

8. MORPHOLOGY AND THE ARCHITECTURE OF GRAMMAR

References

Index of Subjects

Index of Authors

Index of Affixes